ABSTRACT

Disigned for teachers, library media specialists, and parents; the annotated resource bibliography contains titles of children's books and other media selected to promote an understanding of handicapped children and adults. The titles selected represent the last 5 years in which a new awareness of attitudes and feelings toward the handicapped has emerged. The children's book section is divided into books for preschool and primary grades, books for the middle grades, and books for young adults. An audiovisual section and a professional reference section are also provided. Addresses of the publishers and producers are included in a separate section. (PHR)

FOREWORD

With the advent of PL 94-142, the exceptional child is being mainstreamed into regular schools and classes to a greater extent than ever before in the history of public education. It is the responsibility of both special education leaders and the literary community as represented by library developers to bring to all citizens, adults as well as children, an awareness of the needs and problems of handicapped individuals in the schools, community, and our society in general.

The Division of Special Education and the Division of Library Development and Services have cooperatively developed this publication in response to a recognized need for all children to learn about handicapped individuals in our society. The titles selected represent the last five years, a period of reexamination and a new awareness of attitudes and feelings toward the handicapped.

It is our hope that teachers, library media specialists and parents will refer to this resource bibliography to select and creatively use books and other media to enhance and promote an understanding of handicapped children and adults.

This book focuses on the unique needs of handicapped children in the library and how librarians meet those needs.

Biklen, Douglas. The Elementary School Administrator's Guide to Mainstreaming. Syracuse, New York: Human Policy Press, 1977. 263 pp. $2.50.

This publication is aimed at dispelling myths about the handicapped child through a presentation featuring the rights of disabled children, recommendations for parent involvement, and ideas concerning the support role of administrators.

Billings, Mary De Witt. Coping: Books About Young People Surviving Special Problems. Washington, D.C.: U.S. Government Printing Office, 1977. 10 pp. $1.00.

This book contains a bibliography of books about the personal social crisis of children encountering physical handicaps and mental retardation.

Braun, Samuel J. Are You Ready to Mainstream? Helping Preschoolers with Learning and Behavior Problems. Boston, Massachusetts: Harvard University Medical School, 1978. 160 pp. $4.95.

This publication emphasizes practical applications of child development principles in both classroom and home. Classroom management techniques are provided and informal assessment procedures are supplied.

Jordan, June B. and Daily, Rebecca F. Editors. Not All Little Wagons Are Red: The Exceptional Child's Early Years. Reston, Virginia: Council for Exceptional Children, 1973. 192 pp. $9.40.

This delightfully illustrated book deals with an array of issues relevant to programs for young, exceptional children.

Jordan, June B. Teacher, Please Don't Close the Door: The Exceptional Child in the Mainstream. Reston, Virginia: Council for Exceptional Children, 1976. 133 pp. $9.75.

This book is directed at people involved with children, teachers, resource personnel, and school principals.

Ross, Ruth-Ellen and Freelander, I. Robert. Handicapped People in Society: A Curriculum Guide. Burlington, Vermont: University of Vermont, 1977. 160 pp. $4.95.

This guide is designed to influence the attitudes of school children so that they may develop without prejudices and misconceptions regarding handicapped individuals.

Thomas, Angele. Hey, Don't Forget About Me: Education's Investment in the Severely, Profoundly Handicapped. Reston, Virginia: The Council for Exceptional Children, 1976. 208 pp. $17.50.

A report dealing with infant identification, the role of the parents, early intervention, public-school programs, curriculum development, and the role of the teacher.

Thorum, Arden R. And Others. Instructional Materials for the Handicapped: Birth Through Early Childhood. Salt Lake City, Utah: Olympus Publishing Company, 1976. 198 pp. $7.50.

This book presents a listing of manufacturers and vendors for three separate categories: (1) toys and games, (2) instructional kits, and (3) activity guides.
